Maybe Fred Fulton Is Purposely Keeping Dark His Real Fighting Ability in Some of His

operight, 1817, by The Prem Probleming Co., (The New York Evening World). DERHAPS Fred Fulton is playing a foxy game. By not showing all of his fighting ability in every bout he goes right along fighting every week and gathering the coin. If he knocked out each opponent in a couple of rounds, as he usually does in a "return match," he'd soon have no one to fight. And as Willard shows no inclination yet to fight anybody under any circumstances Frederick would have to go back to plantering. Fighting well one day and poorly the next, he keeps the other heavies in an ambitious frame of mind. They are all willing to meet him, hoping for one of those off days. But the bunch wouldn't be so anxious to tangle with Freddy if Freddy used that kick of his at every opportunity.

A n interesting thing about Ful-ton's knocking out of Tait the other night was the fact that he landed the knockdown blows and the knockout with his right hand. Fulton always claimed that he had a good right hand if he cared to use it. but the ringside critics have persisted in thinking him a boxer with a well educated left and nothing else in St. Paul fight followers give Fulton credit for outboxing Miske, aithough Miske seems never to have been in danger of a knockout. Ferhaps Fulton will fight Miske again.

Fulton will show his K. O. punch again Feb. 1. He is matched to meet Tom Cowler on that date in Denver.

Charley Weinert caught a heavy cold in his recent bout with Gunboat Smith. Can it be possible that he didn't have to fight hard enough to keep him-

PATSY CLINE would like very much to fight Benny Leonard again, and preferably over a longer route than six rounds.

Leonard can hold his championship

He is not in the position of a Jess Willard, who is doing no work for his country and who has time to fight and defend who has time to fight and defend his title, and won't do that either. THE B. R. T.—that should be B. R. RR-RRR-RR-R—heats its cars on the same plan that a Mexican works. None to-day and some to-morrow. Maybe, multiplied by two, perhaps. The B. R. T. advises the passengers to heat the cars by animal heat. Which is as queer as a pewter dime.

In the first place, animals aren't allowed on the B. R. T. cars. And suppose they were? Could you imagine a lady getting on a car towing a nice, warm zebra?

And another Flatbush matron escorted by a steam heated armadilio? Wouldn't it be nice for a perfect gentleman to have to give his seat to a lady and a flock of Siamese rhinoceroses?

And lamp yourself paying a jitney for the privilege of crowding a porcupine for a seat. How could you explain it to the wife if you came home from a nickel excursion on the B. R. T. with blonds elephant fur on your lapel?

Figure mentally a Brooklyn gent who has been on the water wagon since New Year. He gets on a B. R. T. car and bumps into a flock of orthodox giraffes, authentic leopards and official boa constrictors. Not the kind they make in Switzerland, either.

Would you blame that gent for trying to beat the women and children to the lifeboats?

Blame it on Columbus. He discovered America.
